

St. Peter's Hospital is a teaching hospital. A teaching hospital provides medical education and training to future and current healthcare professionals. We are affiliated with Albany Medical College and the following nursing schools of the capital region: Hudson Valley Community College, Columbia Green Community College, Maria College, The Sage Colleges and Memorial and Samaritan Hospitals. We work closely with nursing students, medical students, and residents as well as their supervisors throughout their time at St. Peter's Hospital.

You may encounter a student or resident during your stay in the Women's and Children's Division.

We encourage you to direct questions or obtain more detail about their roles in your care from your OB provider (physician or midwife).
